

Huntington's Road to Recovery

2009

Valley Health Medication Assisted Therapy

Valley Health launches Medication Assisted Therapy in the region allowing FDA-approved medications, in combination with counseling, to provide treatment approach for substance use disorder patients

Recovery Point West Virginia

Uses 12-step model to help men and women find lasting recovery

Neonatal Therapeutic Unit

One of the nation's first newborn units dedicated to caring for drug-exposed babies opens at Cabell Huntington Hospital

Recovery Center at Cabell Huntington Hospital

Dr. Ahmet Ozturk and others modify pain management techniques amid opioid crisis

Healthy Connections Coalition

25+ groups uniting local efforts including River Valley CARES, a continuum of care for NAS infants coordinated by Marshall Health and Quality Insights

Long-acting reversible contraceptives (LARC)

Cabell County Drug Court partners with Marshall School of Pharmacy and Marshall OB/GYN to provide voluntary LARC methods to women with history of substance abuse.

Quick Response Team

Initiates contact with individuals who have overdosed within 24-72 hours to discuss treatment options

Project Engage

Project Engage is a joint effort between Cabell Huntington Hospital & St. Mary's to unify policies & protocols to increase likelihood that patients with substance use disorder will be prepared for and choose long term treatment upon discharge

Child Advocacy Center

Hoops Family Children's Hospital opens dedicated program to reduce trauma experienced by children who are victims of abuse

HRSA Training Grant

New education initiatives established by Marshall Family Medicine at the Joan C. Edwards School of Medicine with HRSA support to fight the opioid crisis in the region.

2016

Maier Professor & Director of Addiction Sciences

Marshall University announces Daniel Langleben, MD, will lead its addiction research & treatment efforts

2017

Toxicology lab expansion

Onsite drug screening and advanced analysis

PROACT

Comprehensive treatment and recovery service hub

2011

Maternal Addiction Recovery Center

Outpatient addiction care, counseling for expectant mothers at Marshall Health

2012

2014

2015

Lily's Place

Facility that uses therapeutic handling methods and weaning techniques for infants with Neonatal Abstinence Syndrome

Harm Reduction Program

Partnership with Cabell Huntington Health Department and Marshall University School of Pharmacy, first one in the state to provide needle exchange, Naloxone distribution, education and medical services to promote public health/safety

Drug Court

Comprehensive treatment and rehabilitative services for non-violent drug and alcohol abusing offenders

Substance Use Recovery Coalition

Marshall University forms Substance Use Recovery Coalition to guide the University's efforts in fighting the opioid crisis

MOMS (Maternal Opioid Medication Support) program

Hoops Family Children's Hospital develops program to provide addiction treatment services to postpartum women, not currently in a treatment program, while their babies are recovering from neonatal abstinence syndrome

U.S. Surgeon General visits region

U.S. Surgeon General Dr. Jerome Adams, visits Huntington for first-hand look at community partnerships working together to solve opioid crisis and substance use disorders issues

Project Hope for Women and Children

Residential treatment facility for pregnant and postpartum women & their children that is a joint partnership between Marshall Health and the Huntington City Mission

2018 & Beyond